LE DIABLE BLEU

The history of Dillard University began in 1869 when on July 12 the American Missionary Association of the Congregational Church founded Straight University. On July 8, the Freeman's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church established Union Normal School. Both institutions were later renamed Straight College and New Orleans University, respectively. They taught elementary level and later expanded to include secondary, collegiate and professional levels. These two schools would later come to be known as one beloved Dillard University.

On June 6, 1930, New Orleans University and Straight College merged to form Dillard University, which elected to follow the practices of the two parent institutions with no discrimination against race, religion or sex in the admission of students or selection of faculty.

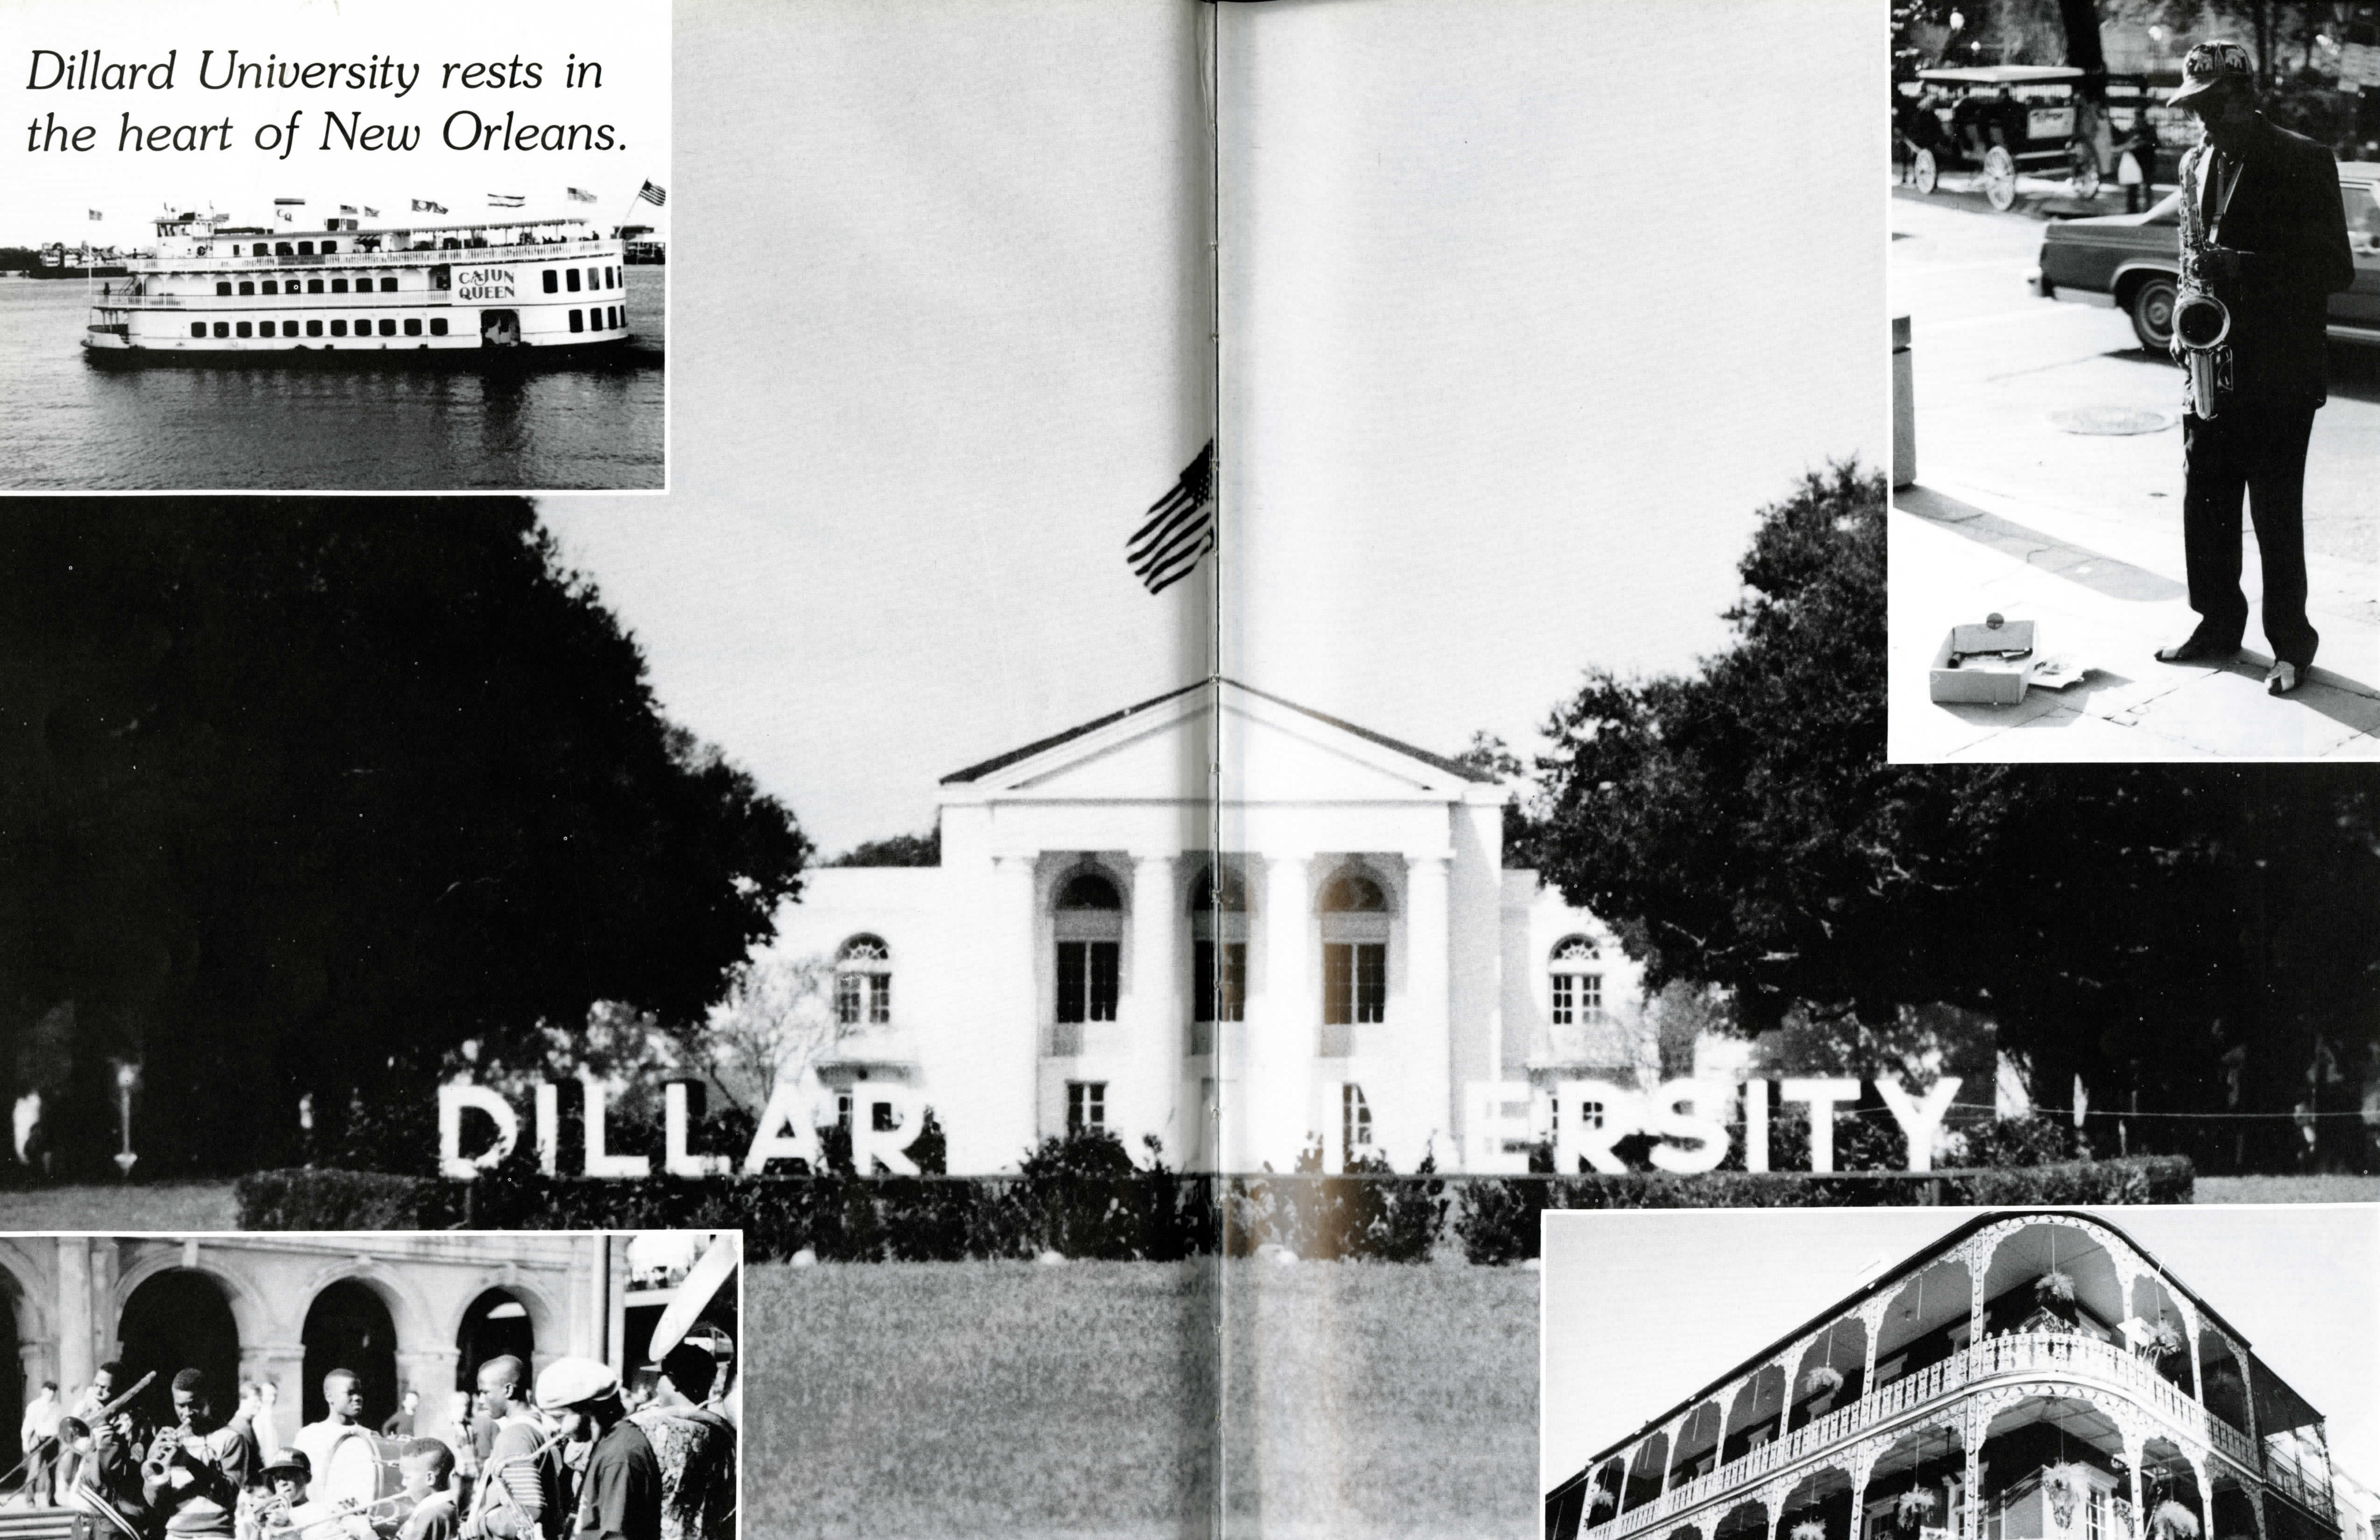

New Orleans University by 1889 had established a medical department including a school of nursing known as Flint-Goodridge Hospital. Dillard University operated Flint-Goodridge Hospital from 1932 until 1983.

In September of 1935 Dillard began instruction at its new site, named in honor of James Hardy Dillard for his distinguished service in the education of Negroes of the South and for his contribution to the history of American Education.

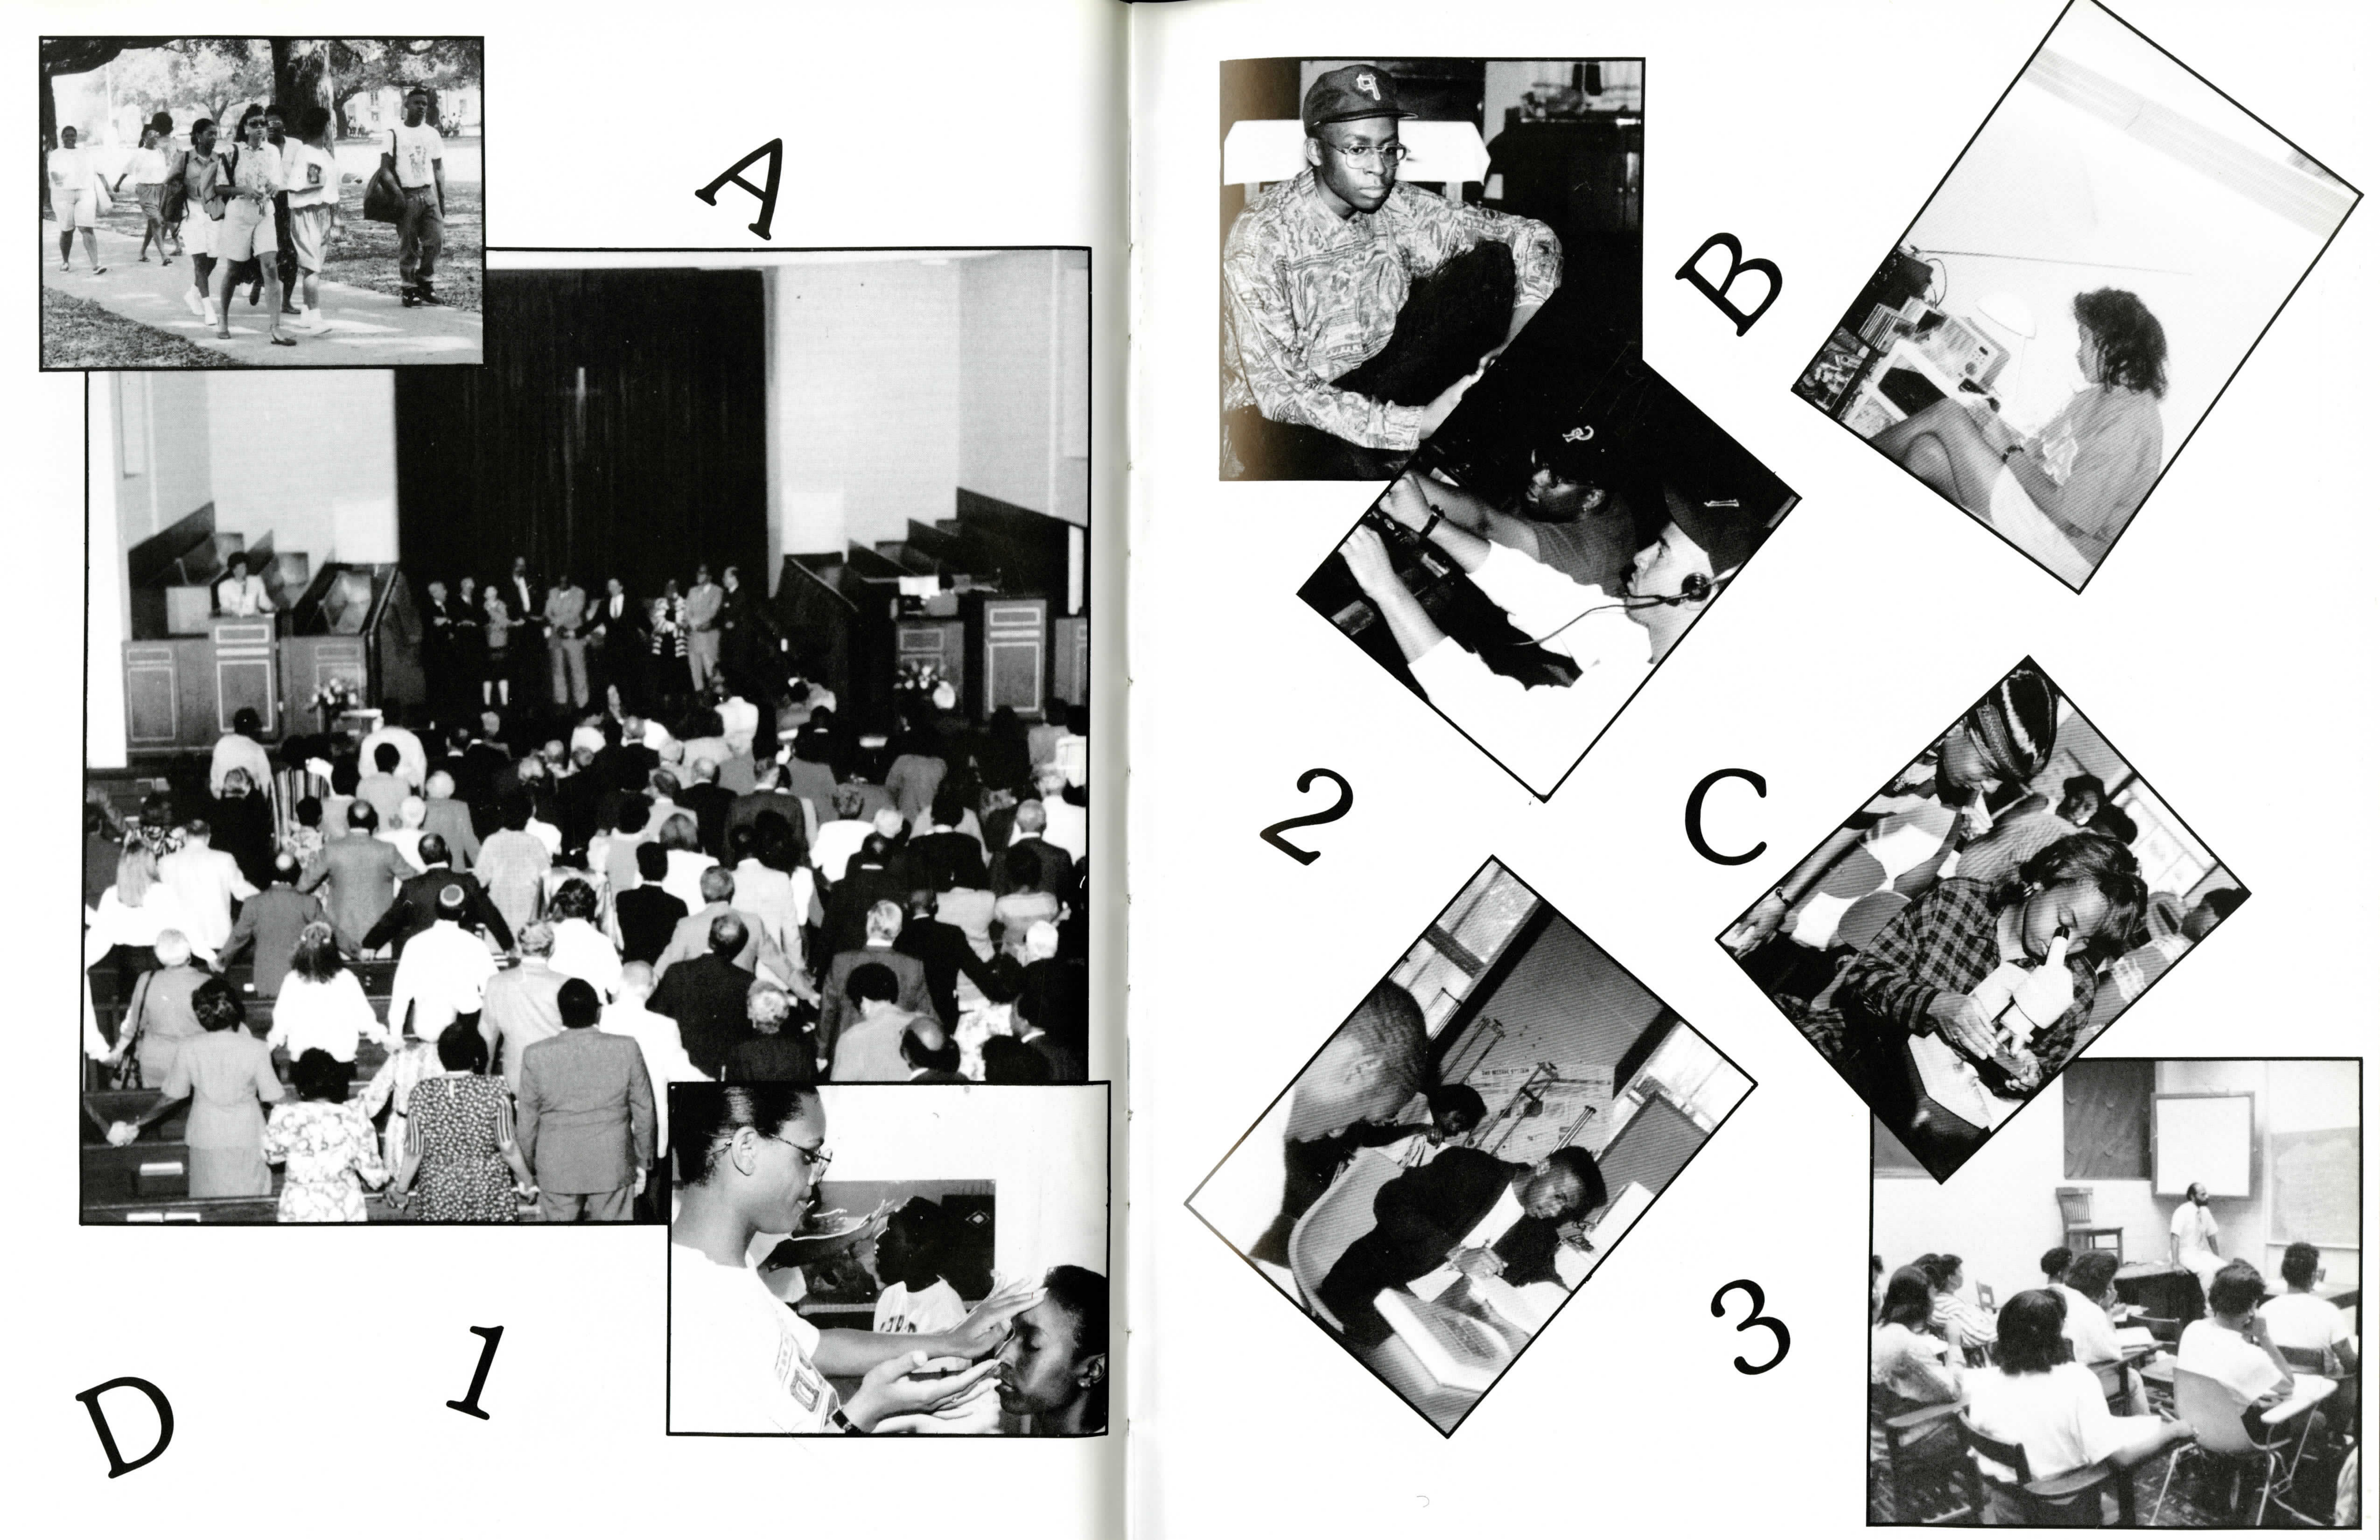

Today Dillard University sits on a 48.2 acre tract covered with oak tres and shaded walkways. It now rests in the geographical heart of New Orleans with all its rich culture and history. All these attributes are what make Dillard University a superior place for learning.

CONTENTS

President Samuel DuBois Cook

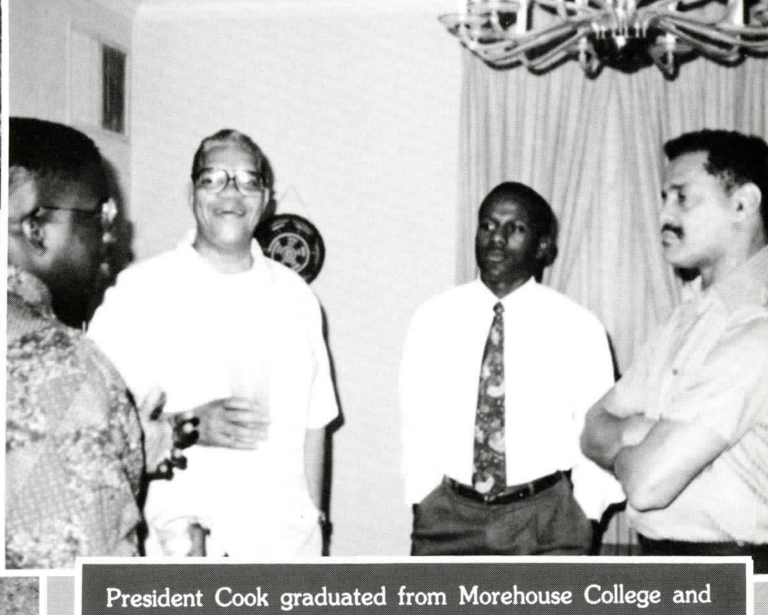

Besides being president of Dillard University since January 1, 1975, Dr. Samuel DuBois Cook has an outstanding record as a political scientist, scholar, educator, teacher, administrator, and civil rights activist. Dr. Cook has taught at Southern University, Atlanta University, the University of Illinois, and UCLA. Dr. Cook was the first black professor at Duke University and the first black to hold a regular faculty appointment at any predominately white college or university in the entire south. He now sits on the Board of Trustees of Duke University, is a member of the Board of Directors of the Council on Library Resources, and is a Trustee of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change. Dr. Cook was also appointed by President Carter to the National Council on the Humanities.

The Man Behind The Title

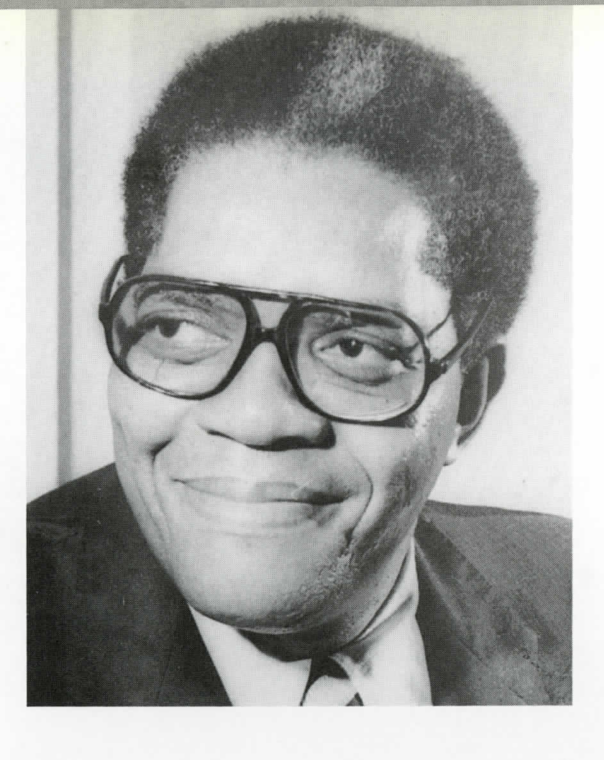

President Cook graduated from Morehouse College and went on to receive a Masters and Ph.D. from Ohio State University. Dr. Cook has also been the recipient of numerous honors and awards. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he holds honorary degrees from Morehouse College, Ohio State University, Illinois College, Duke University, Chicago Theological Seminary, and the University of New Orleans. Behind all the titles, however, lies a compassionate man who is fun loving and sincere. One of President Cook's favorite hobbies is playing baseball and writing. He has published articles in scholarly journals and chapters in books. The President also enjoys lecturing, and spends a considerable amount of time traveling.

Every year the Dillard Players, headed by Ms. Florence Lyons, delight Dillard University with many exciting productions. Some of the plays performed this year were "Freeman", "Contributions", and "Happy Ending".

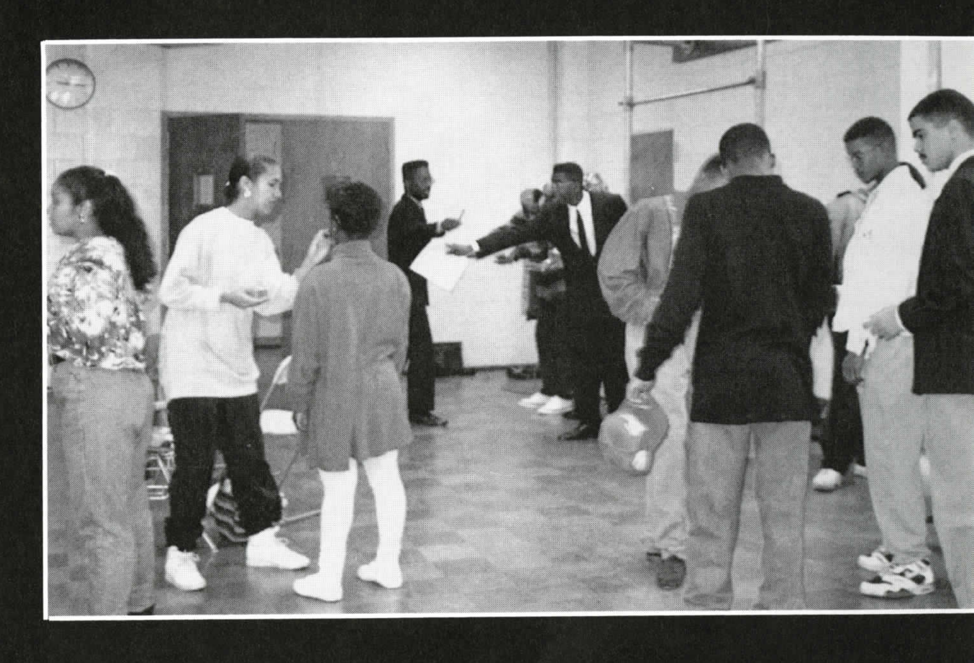

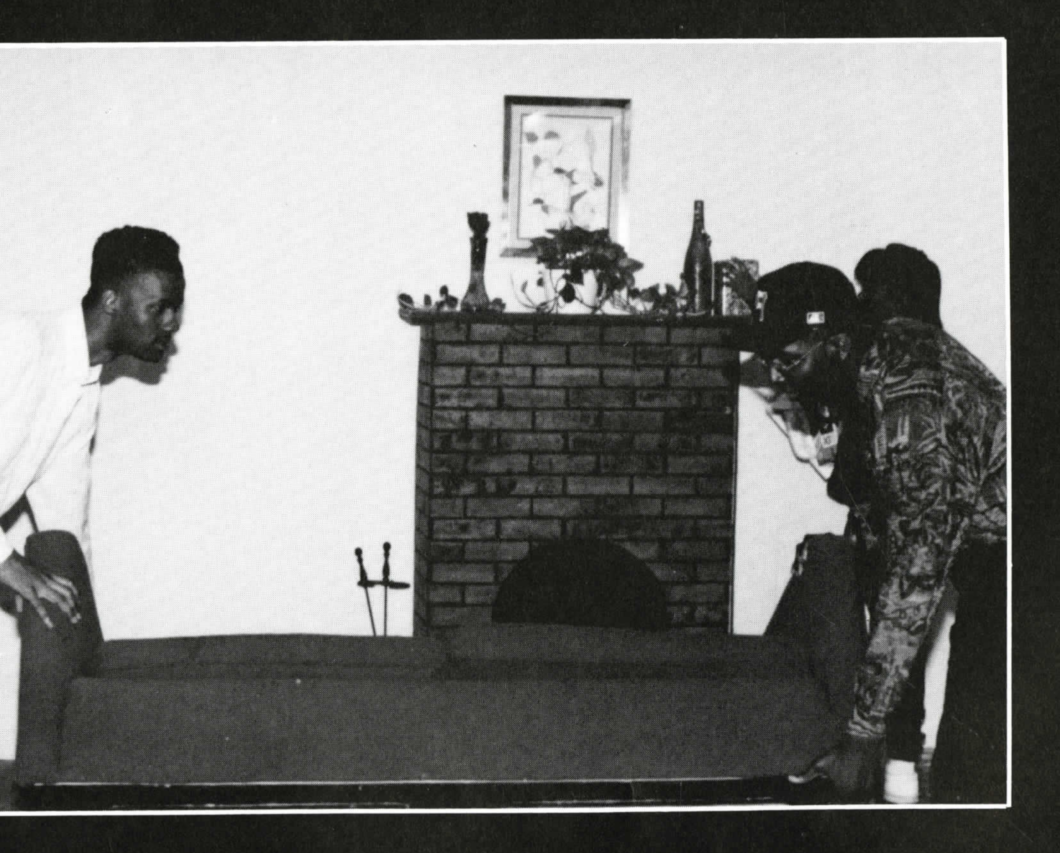

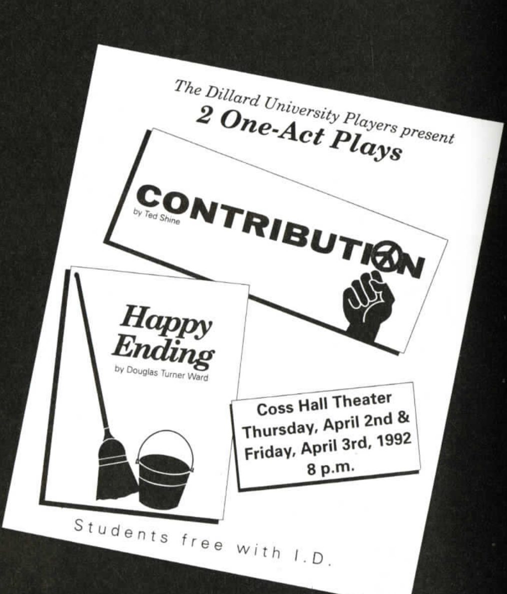

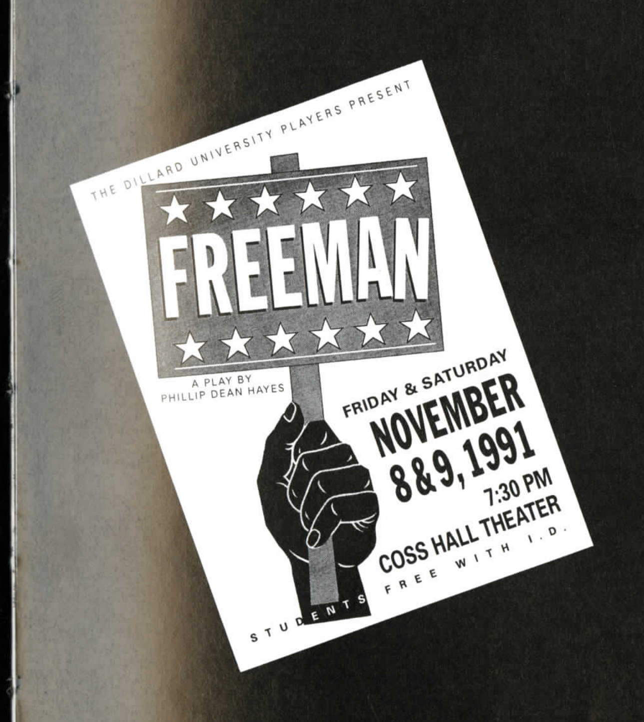

In Memory of Kelli Thompkins

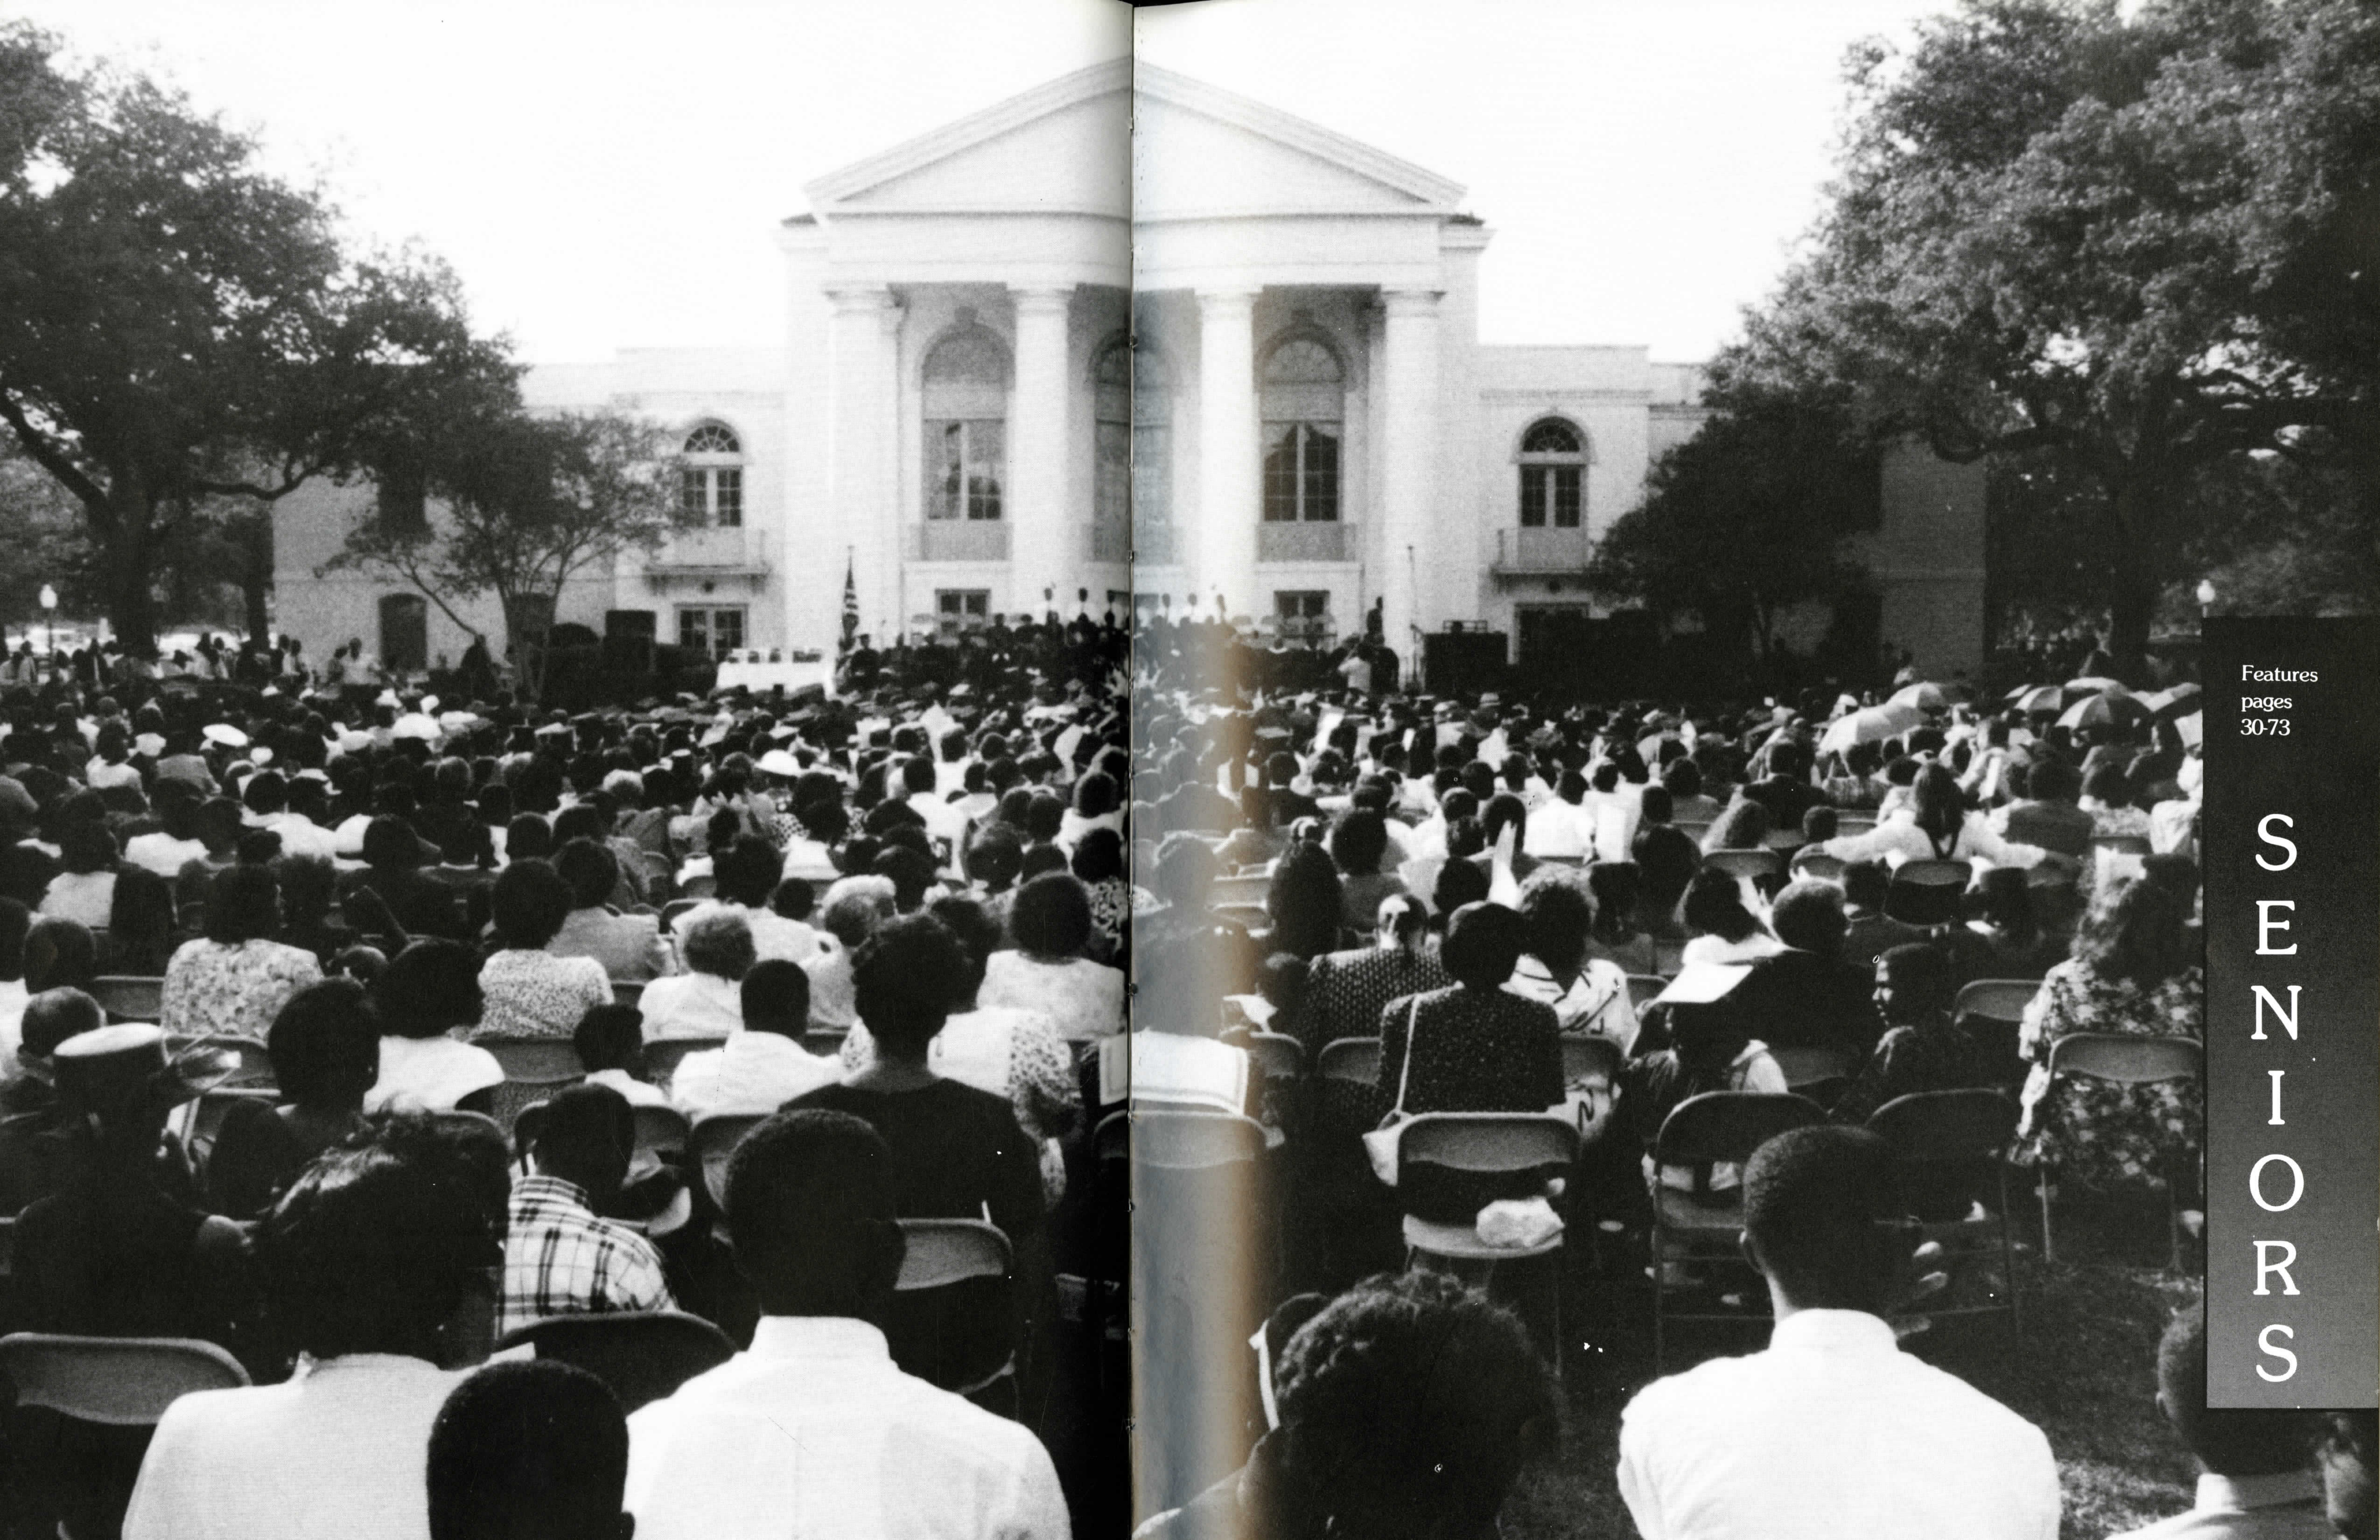

The Dillard University Players would like to dedicate tonight's performance to Kelli Thompkins. As an actress, she performed exceptionally well as "Sarah Williams" in the play Lovesong for Miss Lydia and as Oprah Winfrey in the skit Communication is the Key.

Kelli played an integral part in the development of the drama club. She was a diligent, dedicated member, and she was loved by those who were fortunate enough to know her.

Kelli Thompkins died February 12, 1992.

I am Black
I am beauty, I am spirit
I am music, listen, hear it
I am color; dark and bright blinding power, opaque light
I am Egypt, mighty Sphinx
not the chains, but yes, the links
to earth's center, the Motherland
Be in awe, but understand
I am Black — No excuses, no!
But pride
the world is not large enough to hide
my richness
I will not run, yet I will take flight
Above this world
but never out of sight;
not in the day,
not in the night
For I am too dark, too strong
too bright
And in my blackness
there is light

Is This Mediocrity

*It's not a day, or a night
I'm reviewing my memory;
I'm reminiscing
Of a not so distant past
yet keeping in mind
The approaching future.
Right now I am caught-- caught in the middle--
My middle.
The middle is brown,
trimmed with green
And at different occasions
there's grey
And a sprinkle of white.
I have no respect for the middle.
It's grim.
The Gentilly breeze has come
my way
And at this moment I am thinking of the middle,
Not so long ago
And yet so far away.
I re-evaluate my feelings for
this place
NO CHANGE!
It leaves me no fond memory.
In a sense, it was like Shackles
unabling me to perform, Unabling me to move, to be creative.
In another sense, it was like
Handcuffs
Unabling me to produce (anything of my own worth mentioning),
Crippling my mind
Slowly becoming handicapped
and yet totally capable.
I hated the middle then
As I do now.
It wasn't me.
Well, it wasn't me
Because I was brown,
trimmed with green
And at different occasions I was grey
And with a sprinkle of white.*

Dillard University's fine arts and communications center makes history. Ground was broken in the spring of 1991. The new building will hold the Humanities division behind it's walls. Some features of the building are a new theater, a large art studio, new music rooms, and a mass communications area. Dillard can now say goodbye to Coss Hall, the former music and theater area.

Duwhachalike...

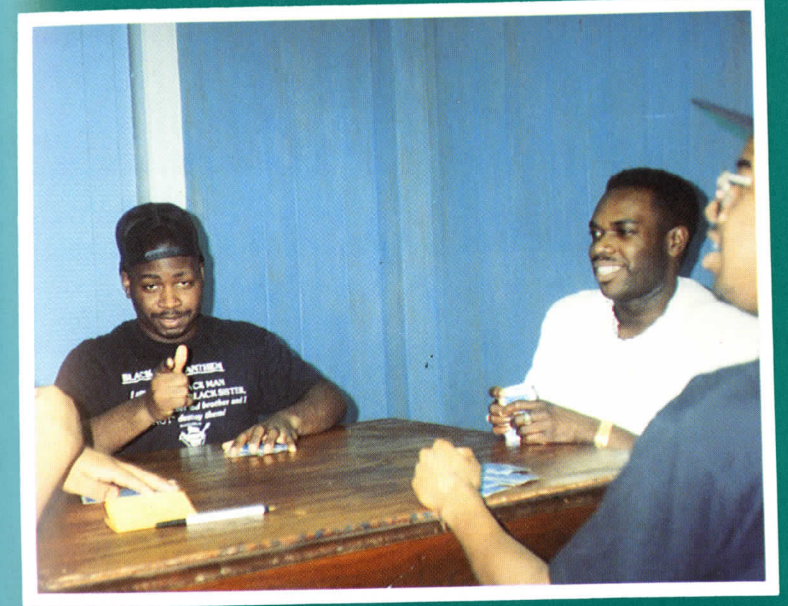

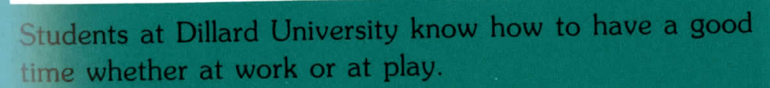

Adapting to strenuous college life is not always easy. Preparing for the "real world" through education involves many hectic days and frustrating hours. One often finds that tests, meetings, and homework can pile up. When this occurs, it is time to sit down, relax, and let the quiet atmosphere of DU take its toll.

Students at Dillard University know how to have a good time whether at work or at play.

Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity,Inc.

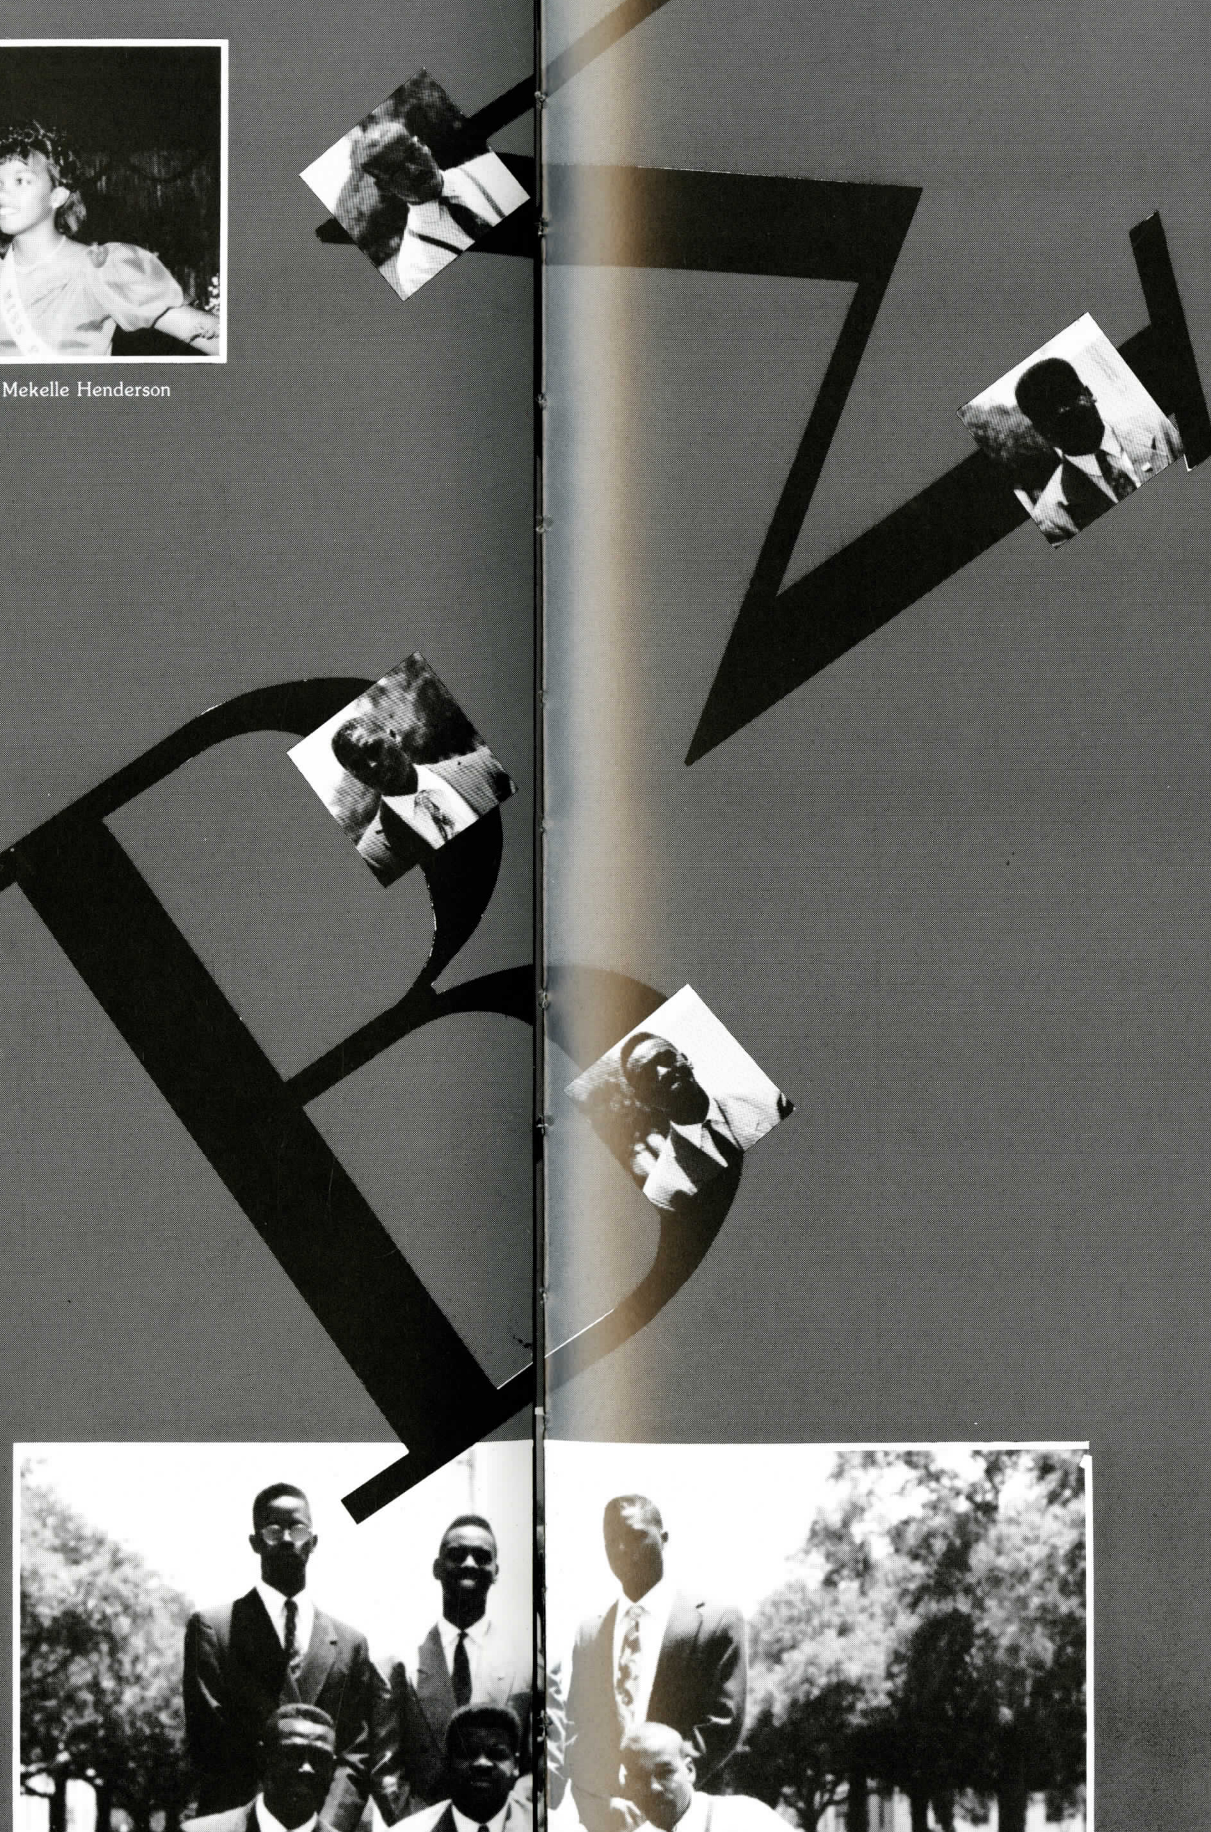

From the moment of its official inception on January 9,1914, Phi Beta Fraternity has sought to return something of value to the community from which it springs. In a very real sense the motto of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity-- "Culture for Service and Service for Humanity"-- is a daily guidepost by which each Sigma man must measure himself. Our members see themselves as trustees of skills, abilities, ideas and time, and as vehicles through which positive change can be achieved.

Because the depth of our organization extends far beyond the level of an ordinary club or association, a member of Phi Beta Sigma must, as the Good Book says, "Study to show thyself approved... a workman that need not be ashamed."
On January 9,1914, the permanent organization of Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity was effected on the campus of Howard University,Washington,D.C.
Members of the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity,Inc. pictured are: Edward Kufuor, Joseph Baptiste, Chad Smith, Kevin Baptiste, Terrance Brown, and Shawn Ponder.

Familiar Places for DU Students

If the students of Dillard aren't sitting on the yard, they're usually somewhere around the city, yet close to home. Right around the corner and across the street, there are loads of places to go. Every Blue Devil has either seen or visited one of the surrounding spots. The duck pond, K&B, McDonald's, and at night the frequently renamed nightclubs.

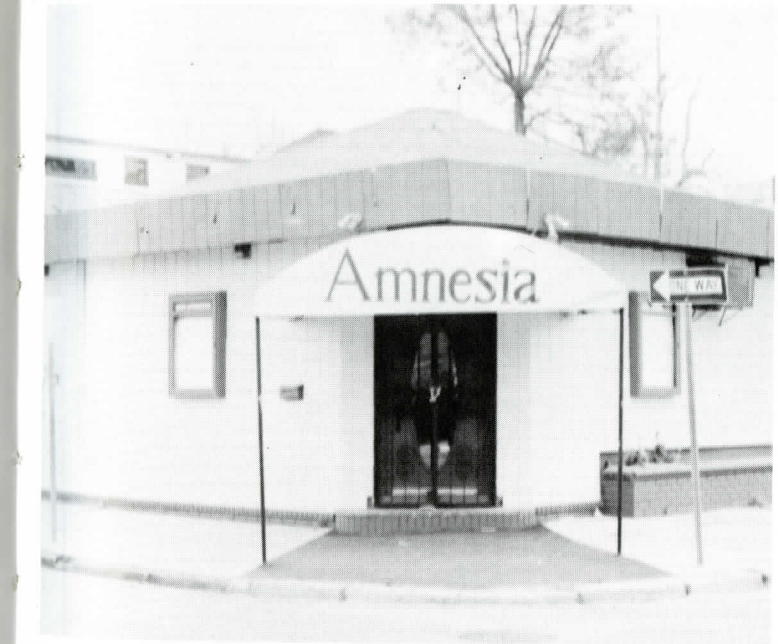

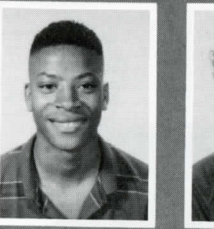

There's a little devil in all of us.
